Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Sept. 21.—(U. P.)—The non-stop flight from New York to Spokane, feature event of the national air races and Spokane air derby, started this afternoon.

At 3:01 p. m. Eddie Stinson's orange colored monoplane rolled down the famous "trans-Atlantic runway" of this flying field, raised gracefully into the air and headed west for Spokane where Stinson expects to eat his dinner tomorrow.

Only once has a non-stop flight from coast to coast been made.

Promptly at 3 p. m. the starter's flag dropped beside Stinson's monoplane and the machine roared away. It lost momentum as it left the incline but gathered speed as it whirled along and after a dash of 3,000 feet went into the air and was away.

As Stinson's plane faded from view E. A. (Duke) Schiller's Stinson monoplane "Royal Windsor" was taxied to the starting position, its motor roaring and its pilot eager for the starting flag.

As the flag dropped Schiller sped forward and was off at 3:13 p. m.

There were about 1,000 persons on the field to see the take-off. They cheered and waved as the planes got under way.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Sept. 21.—UP—A non-stop race over the mountains and prairies, that separate Long Island from Spokane, Wash., will start this afternoon as the last of three events in the National Air derby.

Three powerful planes, and possibly a fourth, will essay the long flight for which the first prize is $10,000 and the second $5,000.

The race, which is to start between 2 and 3 p. m. has assumed an international aspect with the entry of C. A. (Duke) Schiller in his monoplane Royal Windsor, the Stinson-Detroit he planned to fly across the Atlantic from Windsor, Ont. to Windsor, Eng.

That project was called off when the backers became alarmed at the numerous trans-oceanic tragedies, but the perils facing the fliers today are many and real. Their route will take them over sparsely settled districts, through tricky air currents that mountains provide and doubtless into fog and storm.

The other racers include Eddie Stinson of Detroit in another plane of his own design and Steve Lacey in the bi-plane Air-King of the National Air Service. The Air-King arrived last night at nearby Curtis Field.

The fourth entrant may be the rebuilt Waterhouse Cruizer, a Ryan monoplane, piloted by Jack Rang of San Diego, Calif.

Originally the rules provided that at least five planes should enter, but Spokane officials agreed to modify the regulation.

Schiller will have Edward Bohn of Detroit as co-pilot; Fred Koehler, also of Detroit, will be navigator for Stinson, and Capt. L. A. Yancey of New York will serve in the same capacity for Lacey.

Reminiscent of trans-oceanic flights, Stinson announced he would follow "Great Circle" course, missing the principal cities.

He intends to pass over Canada between Buffalo and Detroit, race sixty miles north of St. Paul, veer fairly close to Bismarck, N. D., and then proceed across Montana to Spokane. His cruising speed is 106 miles an hour, but counting in the ever-present contingency of head wind he has set 30 hours as the possible time for the flight.

Schiller will fly a little further to the north. He plans to drop messages affixed to streamers, asking the fliers to notify an airplane company that the plane has passed over.

The race will bring to an end an unparalleled series of "air derbies," for this country. On Monday twenty-five class B planes set out from the field here on a three day flight and yesterday fifteen planes took off for Spokane in a two-day flight.

It was here that the German crown prince, proudly wearing the helmet of the death's head Hussars, stalked and lost 600,000 lives in an effort to capture the citadel of Verdun. France spent 400,000 lives to save it.

"The Salvation Army owes much to the Legion," said Commander Booth, "for it was the returned soldiers who spread stories which brought us fame and popularity which enabled us greatly to increase our post-war social work."

"My first offer of services to the government during the war met with the reply, 'Stay at home and go on with your street preaching.' But I am most proud of our record and our girls who smiled even though they slept in haystacks and often were hungry and cold."

SENATE MAY GIVE COOLIDGE SOME TROUBLE

INDEPENDENT REPUBLICANS
AND DEMOCRATS TALKING
OF INVESTIGATION

RESPECT HIM PERSONALLY, BUT
OPPOSED TO HIS BEING
WALL STREET BANKER

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Sept. 21.—(U. P.)—President Coolidge may have some trouble getting the senate to confirm his choice of Dwight W. Morrow to be ambassador of Mexico.

Independent republicans and democrats are talking about a possible investigation of Morrow by the Senate Foreign Relations committee which will consider the nomination when Mr. Coolidge sends it to the senate next December. They have respect for Morrow personally but are generally opposed to the appointment of any member of the firm of J. P. Morgan and Company or other Wall street bankers. They are especially interested because of the oil land controversy with Mexico in which many Wall street dollars have been invested.

Mr. Coolidge made the appointment on his own initiative, because he felt the present Mexican situation needed a keen business man to handle it. No one recommended Morrow's name to him. In fact there was a general dearth of recommendations, most available men seeming to wish to avoid the delicate mission which has carried so little glory and so much war in the past.

The president persuaded Morrow to abandon his financial career to accept the post and some observers here believe Mr. Coolidge has a cabinet office in view for the financier at some future time.

Morrow is the only man who might have been considered "a personal adviser" of the president. The two were classmates at Amherst and Morrow planned much of the strategy of the last national campaign. He visited Mr. Coolidge in the Black Hills to inform the president of the situation regarding a proposed French loan in this country. Morrow was discussing the subject as the two sat on the front porch one afternoon when Mr. Coolidge suddenly interjected, "Do you like dogs?"

Morrow was thrown from his argument in confusion. When he recovered he said he did like dogs and had one at home. Then he skillfully turned the conversation back to the subject in which he was so deeply interested. Mr. Coolidge let him continue for a few minutes and then inquired "Do you like chow dogs?"

This ended the conversation. Morrow concluding that Mr. Coolidge did not desire to discuss the French loan subject.

When Morrow's nomination is sent to the senate it will be referred to the foreign relations committee as a matter of course. Then if objection is made it will be referred to a sub-committee for inquiry. Morrow himself may be called by the committee to testify as to his personal attitude toward the Mexican oil dispute and perhaps concerning his affiliations with Morgan and Co.

Mr. Coolidge, however, has given Morrow a recess commission so that he may serve in the meantime and Morrow is expected to leave for Mexico City within a few days. He will immediately sever his connections with his firm, it was said.

Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee holds that Morrow personally is highly capable and that he will carry out the government's policy toward Mexico, but he indicated he is not entirely certain what this policy

AMERICA KNELT IN REVERENCE FOR SOLDIER DEAD

MARTYRED CITY OF VERDUN IS VISITED BY AMERICAN
LEGIONAIRES

ONE THOUSAND ACCOMPANIED BY PERSHING, POINCARE,
PETAIN AND OTHERS

Verdun, France, Sept. 21.—UP—America knelt today in reverence and respect before more than 1,000, 000 dead.

where occurred the greatest slaughter in history, was visited by General John J. Pershing, 1,000 American Legionnaires, Premier Poincare, Marshal Petain who defended the city in time of war, and other notables. The occasion was Franco-American Memorial day.

This town of a few thousand living persons and of hundreds of thousands of the dead slowly is rising from the ashes of battle. It was decorated gaily today with French and American flags.

It was here that the German crown prince, proudly wearing the helmet of the death's head Hussars, stalked and lost 600,000 lives in an effort to capture the citadel of Verdun. France spent 400,000 lives to save it.

Pershing and the Legionnaires visited the cemetery where lie the seven unidentified soldiers from whose ranks were chosen an eighth who became the unknown soldier of France in a tomb beneath the Arch of Triumph.

American Legion Convention Hall, Trocadero, Paris, Sept. 21.—Reorganization of the administration of the national defense of the United States was proposed and approved today by the American Legion convention here.

The Legion adopted a resolution favoring the organization of a department of national defense in which there would be four divisions, one each for the army, navy, air service and munitions. Each division would have a separate chief under a departmental secretary, who would be a member of the cabinet.

Paris, Sept. 21.—(UP)—American Legionnaires cheered and sang the praise of the "doughnut girls" as Evangeline Booth, national commander of the Salvation Army, rose to address the convention today.

"The Salvation Army owes much to the Legion," said Commander Booth, "for it was the returned soldiers who spread stories which brought us fame and popularity which enabled us greatly to increase our post-war social work."

"My first offer of services to the government during the war met with the reply, 'Stay at home and go on with your street preaching.' But I am most proud of our record and our girls who smiled even though they slept in haystacks and often were hungry and cold."

Warmer weather was in prospect for today.

BISHOP LOCKE LASHES BOOK, 'ELMER GENTRY'

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 21.—(UP)—The mind which conceived "Elmer Gentry" was the mind of a moron, Bishop Charles E. Locke of the Minnesota Methodist Episcopal area declared here at the annual conference of the Nebraska Methodist church.

"The book is a filthy caricature," Bishop Locke said. "Lewis must be a moron. That's what I think of a mind which could conceive such a foul thing. Lewis' father lives in my area and is a very fine gentleman, but his son is no credit to him."

Peterson claimed he had married Kathryn Foley last month, the girl told police, and he demanded that she join him in Chicago. Kathryn denied the marriage and refused to go.

Peterson came to Milwaukee and confronted the family as they were eating dinner. He drew a revolver and when George Foley, the girl's father, attempted to seize it, the frantic lover shot wildly, killing Janet Foley, 22, and wounding Foley severely.

HOLYOKE, MASS., THREAT-ENED BY INFLUENZA

MARY'S TEMPERATURE RISEN
TO 103, MARGARET'S TO 99
DEGREES

Holyoke, Mass., Sept. 21.—(UP)—Physicians today held hope for the recovery of Mary and Margaret Gibbs, 14-year-old Siamese twins, whose inseparably connected lives had been threatened by influenza.

Mrs. John R. Gibbs, mother of the strange pair, said this morning that the children had passed "a very fair night" and that they were still asleep at 7 a. m.

"While of course we do not know what turn the disease may take, we are more hopeful today," she said. "Mary's temperature had risen to 103 and Margaret's to 99. But late last night, when the doctors last took the temperatures, Mary's had dropped to 101 and Margaret's was normal."

The mother said it would be a few days before physicians could say definitely whether the twins would recover.

Holyoke, Mass., Sept. 21.—(UP)—Mary and Margaret Gibbs, 14-year-old Siamese twins, whose lives have been endangered by influenza, today were reported out of danger.

GROOM 98, BRIDE 60

WHIRLWIND COURT-
SHIP

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 21.—UP—William H. Martin, 98, and Mrs. Emma Steele, 60, were planning a brief honeymoon today, following their marriage yesterday after a whirlwind courtship.

It was, Martin said, a case of love at first sight. Martin met Mrs. Steele yesterday morning, they talked for a while and Martin suddenly proposed. He was accepted and the two were married shortly after noon.

Martin was jilted last week by Mrs. Ella Nichols, 58, of Tulsa, Okla. on the day the two were scheduled to be married. Martin had given his age as 80 when getting the marriage license, but later returned to the clerk and informed him he really is 98.

Mrs. Nichols declared the attending publicity was too much for her and she returned to Tulsa.

Martin said he knew "as soon as I laid eyes on her, that Mrs. Steele was the girl for me."

SENATE MAY GIVE COOLIDGE SOME TROUBLE

INDEPENDENT REPUBLICANS
AND DEMOCRATS TALKING
OF INVESTIGATION

RESPECT HIM PERSONALLY, BUT
OPPOSED TO HIS BEING
WALL STREET BANKER

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Sept. 21.—(UP)—President Coolidge may have some trouble getting the senate to confirm his choice of Dwight W. Morrow to be ambassador of Mexico.

Independent republicans and democrats are talking about a possible investigation of Morrow by the Senate Foreign Relations committee which will consider the nomination when Mr. Coolidge sends it to the senate next December. They have respect for Morrow personally but are generally opposed to the appointment of any member of the firm of J. P. Morgan and Company or other Wall street bankers. They are especially interested because of the oil land controversy with Mexico in which many Wall street dollars have been invested.

Mr. Coolidge made the appointment on his own initiative, because he felt the present Mexican situation needed a keen business man to handle it. No one recommended Morrow's name to him. In fact there was a general dearth of recommendations, most available men seeming to wish to avoid the delicate mission which has carried so little glory and so much loss in the past.

The president persuaded Morrow to abandon his financial career to accept the post and some observers here believe Mr. Coolidge has a cabinet office in view for the financier at some future time.

Morrow is the only man who might have been considered "a personal adviser" of the president. The two were classmates at Amherst and Morrow planned much of the strategy of the last national campaign. He visited Mr. Coolidge in the Black Hills to inform the president of the situation regarding a proposed French loan in this country. Morrow was discussing the subject as the two sat on the front porch one afternoon when Mr. Coolidge suddenly interjected, "Do you like doggies?"

Morrow was thrown from his argument in confusion. When he recovered he said he did like dogs and had one at home. Then he skillfully turned the conversation back to the subject in which he was so deeply interested. Mr. Coolidge let him continue for a few minutes and then inquired "Do you like chow dogs?"

This ended the conversation, Morrow concluding that Mr. Coolidge did not desire to discuss the French loan subject.

When Morrow's nomination is sent to the senate it will be referred to the foreign relations committee as a matter of course. Then if objection is made it will be referred to a sub-committee for inquiry. Morrow himself may be called by the committee to testify as to his personal attitude toward the Mexican oil dispute and perhaps concerning his affiliations with Morgan and Co.

Mr. Coolidge, however, has given Morrow a recess commission so that he may serve in the meantime and Morrow is expected to leave for Mexico City within a few days. He will immediately sever his connections with his firm, it was said.

Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee holds that Morrow personally is highly capable and that he will carry out the government's policy toward Mexico, but he indicated he is not entirely certain what this policy

RENDERS FINE PROGRAM

Swedish Glee Club of Brainerd Appreciated in Appearance at Upsala

The Upsala News Tribune has the following to say about the concert put on by the Swedish Glee club of Brainerd at Upsala Sunday evening, Sept. 11.

Those who were fortunate and anticipating enough to go to listen to the Swedish Glee club of Brainerd here at the high school auditorium last Sunday evening, certainly heard a splendid program excellently rendered. The voices were exceptionally good and in their ensemble, it was ideal music. In the interpretation of motive, and expression of sentiment, it was perfect.

It was too bad that the auditorium was not filled to its capacity and more, but the night was an awful sultry one, and many of us who did not anticipate what a treat of music we could have enjoyed, kept in the outfit to keep cool. Another matter, they came here so modestly and unassuming that many did not know of their wonderful merits.

If this Glee club comes again, and announces another program as good as the one of last Sunday evening, there will be no wanting of an audience.

RENDERS FINE PROGRAM Swedish Glee Club of Brainerd Appreciated in Appearance at Upsala

The Upsala News Tribune has the following to say about the concert put on by the Swedish Glee club of Brainerd at Upsala Sunday evening, Sept. 11.

Those who were fortunate and anticipating enough to go to listen to the Swedish Glee club of Brainerd here at the high school auditorium last Sunday evening, certainly heard a splendid program excellently rendered. The voices were exceptionally good and in their ensemble, it was ideal music. In the interpretation of motive, and expression of sentiment, it was perfect.

It was too bad that the auditorium was not filled to its capacity and more, but the night was an awful sultry one, and many of us who did not anticipate what a treat of music we could have enjoyed, kept in the outing to keep cool. Another matter, they came here so modestly and unassuming that many did not know of their wonderful merits.

If this Glee club comes again, and announces another program as good as the one of last Sunday evening, there will be no wanting of an audience.

HEDDA HOYT TELLS— OF PARIS ACCESSORIES

By HEDDA HOYT

Paris, France (UP)—One glance at French gown prices and the average American tourist decides to wait until her return to America to buy copies of French gowns. A copy of the $300 Paris gown can be purchased in America for less than half of that price within three weeks after it is shown in Paris. Accessories, however, are far cheaper in Paris than in America. And, they are more beautiful and unique!

Gloves in Paris are perfectly exquisite this year and the most one can pay for them is $4 or $5. The newest gloves to make a hit with Americans here have wide turn-down cuffs worked in delicate varicolored Beauvais embroidery. The glove may be of kid or suede, in white or pale beige tones, while the cuff is usually brown or black silk embroidered in delicate pastel floral patterns. Cuffs are made in one with the glove, the two-inch width embroidery portion folding down over the hand. Silk handbags in shades of deep brown or black embroided in exquisite Beauvais work to match the glove-cuffs may be had for around $20. And glove handkerchiefs embroidered to match the glove-cuffs are extremely popular.
Most gloves have tiny pockets in the cuff for the glove handkerchief.

Among the accessories which the American woman is sure to buy in Paris are heels for evening slippers.
Almost every shop sells these heels studded in brilliants which may be set onto any shoe. Black heels studded in rhinestones are chosen for black satin slippers and silver heels with rhinestones for silver slippers.
Almost every conceivable color scheme may be found in heels and the prices are most reasonable.

Umbrellas of exotic type also attract American women. At present those with animal-head handles are most popular. All sorts of dogs' heads are shown, the ears, eyes and months being movable if one touches a spring. Birds' heads are also shown. To my mind, more unusual than these are handles which have compartments for make-up cigarettes matches, etc.

The vogue for pearls is waning in Paris. Gold jewelry copied from antique types is more popular for day-wear both for necklets and earrings. For evening wear, brilliants set in silver in antique settings are chosen.

CORN PRICES DROP AS FROST FAILS TO MATERIALIZE

Chicago, Sept. 21.—(UP)—Closing prices in corn futures at today's session on the Chicago Board of Trade were around the day's low levels, 4½ to 5 cents under last night's close.

Failure of frost damage to materialize caused the disastrous break today.
Weakness of corn caused a sharp decline of 1½ cents in wheat futures here.

EVERYTHING GOING OUT AND NOTHING GOING IN

A. A. WEIDEMANN the other day gave a very thoughtful talk at the Rotary club on the propagation of fish.

"So many sportsmen and so many sportsmen journals think only of devising ways and means of taking out fish and never give a thought to putting anything back. Any one can plainly see the end of fishing when everything goes out and nothing goes in," said the speaker.

He mentioned a large number of game and fish magazines, etc., which never seemed to give a thought to replenishing a lake with fry. Every story in the covers of the magazine was the record of some wonderful exploit in catching this or that kind of a fish and not a line on any sportsman or group doing a thing in the way of restocking a lake.

Life is what we make it. The man who does much for the world draws dividends in the shape of the gratitude of those befriended or assisted and has the satisfaction of knowing he left the world better than he found it.

It must be a sad day for some city sportsman when he is about to give up the ghost and sees in his mind's eye the host of fish he has caught, ducks killed, deer taken and other wild life cut off and never an effort on his part to even try to replace with new life a fraction of the slaughter he has perfected.

The other day we of the Brainerd Dispatch read a fish hook catalog of a noted group of manufacturers. Page after page told how to catch them, how to hook the big fellows, how to get your fill of muskellunges, pike, bass, crappies, trout, etc.

"Well," we thought, "here's just another glaring case of doing nothing but catching fish and never a thought to replacement with fresh stock. Any fish hook manufacturer ought to be wise enough to know that when lakes are fished out he can't sell any more fish hooks."

Then, thank heavens for the fish propagation idea, small as may have been the contribution, the last two lines of the catalog bore the injunction: "Return small fish uninjured to the water; don't take too many—and do your share to further any local movement for restocking and replacement."

VALUE OF PURE MILK AND PURE WATER

IN a recent bulletin of the Minnesota State Department of Health, given wide distribution at the recent State Fair, stress was laid on the value of pure milk and pure water. We quote:

Milk is one of our best and cheapest foods but is also one of the most difficult to keep clean and free from disease.

Do you know that typhoid fever, scarlet fever, diphtheria, septic sore throat, tuberculosis, and diarrheal disease may be carried through milk? And do you know that Pasteurizing the milk or boiling it will destroy the disease germs?

If you live in a city or village, your health officer or council can tell you whether your city or village has passed and is enforcing a good milk ordinance. A good milk ordinance provides local supervision for safeguarding the milk supply.

If you live in the country, you should see that the dairy herd is free from tuberculosis as shown by a tuberculin test, that the persons producing and handling the milk are free from communicable diseases, and that the milk is produced and handled in a sanitary manner. As an additional safeguard, the milk should be Pasteurized or boiled to destroy any disease germs that may be in it.

Polluted water may be responsible for typhoid fever and dysentery. Water from any lake or stream is not safe to drink unless it is purified or boiled. Most wells and springs may be made safe by keeping out pollution. If your city or village has a public water supply your health officer or council can tell you whether it is approved by the Minnesota Department of Health. If you get your water from your own well or spring, you can obtain information on the proper location, construction and operation of such supplies from the bulletin entitled, "Water Supplies and Sewerage Systems for Farm Residences" by the Minnesota Department of Health.

BEWARE OF THE PEDDLER

ALL peddlers or house order takers who are touring the smaller communities should have painted across their hats in plain letters "Community Wreckers," says the Bemidji Daily Pioneer.

They serve no good purpose. They sell nothing that cannot be purchased at retail stores. Their prices are usually much higher, considering the quality of the merchandise.

Their guarantee means nothing for tomorrow they are gone. They pay not a cent to local taxes or community funds, and have no interest in your community except the dollars they can garner.

The dollar spent with the home merchant, and deposited by him in the home bank, is the same dollar you borrow when you come to the bank and want a loan.

For your own welfare, if for no other, discourage the peddler and order taker, and spend your money at home. The local dealer is always here, ready to stand back of his merchandise. He deserves your continued support.

So important are weather reports these days, that daily notes on temperature are being sent to the Twin Cities. Warm or cold temperature has a great bearing on crops in this section and the buying power of many people depends on the state of crops. Brainerd is in the trade area of the Twin Cities. Thus, consequently, we're all watching the thermometer these days.

It is declared that the lion that flew with Martin Jensen was disgusted with the exploit. The plane landed in a grove of trees in Arizona and was wrecked. The cage carrying the lion held intact. Jensen and his load of lion were on their way to New York.

AFTER recent hospital revelations on mixed identities of babies one realizes the necessity of "fingerprinting" the feet of the little ones, so that this indelible marker will establish identity.

"Do right now," says Emerson. "Always scorn appearances, and you always may. The force of character is cumulative. All the foregone days of virtue work their health into this."

WITH the Yankees sure of the pennant this year, Babe Ruth will be the first player to engage in eight World Series.

SOME learned doctors now declare that a blood test will not prove parentage.

SYNOPSIS

Fabien, good and handsome youth of France, trains for the priesthood; but meets and loves Manon Lescant, beautiful orphan, who is coveted by hideous Count Ravier. Fabien saves her and carries her off to Paris. Circumstances force her to surrender to Ravier. She returns to Fabien, and they live so extravagantly that Fabien is forced to capitulate a genius for cards. The King plays Fabien at cards for Manon, accuses him of cheating. Manon is deported. Fabien stows away on the convict ship, and later asks the Captain to marry Manon and him.

"Marry you!" exploded the Captain. "You told me two months ago that you were man and wife."

The Governor, who had been sitting with an astonished look upon his face, half rose from his seat as he asked, "Do you mean to tell me that you two are not married?"

Fabien's face must have expressed the consternation that swept over him, for he felt Manon shrink close to him and her quick convulsive grasp on his arm brought a full realization of his mistake. In the joyous thoughts of the new life that was opening for them, he had utterly forgotten his previous statement made to the Captain weeks before.

"There was nothing to do now but face the situation. Fabien held Manon's hand more tightly and answered calmly, "No, we were not married, but we love each other and wish you to marry us before we land."

For a full moment there was a deep silence. Across the Captain's face one emotion after another clearly expressed his rising anger at being duped by them both and disillusioned by Manon.

The Governor was amazed into stunned silence. To think that Fabien had tricked them all by a lie. He blamed himself as an utter fool for having respected the so called holy bonds of matrimony.

It took Synnelet to break the silence. "That is good," he said, stepping forward. "That is very good, Monsieur, and now that we know the truth," he continued, turning to his Uncle, "There is no reason why I cannot have her."

"Right, my boy," replied the Governor slowly nodding his head to the nephew he never denied, then turning to Fabien with a slightly puzzled expression he said, "Since the girl is not your wife, she is any man's property, and shall be given to my nephew."

Fabien tightened his grasp around Manon's shoulders. His own stupidity had brought their dream castle tumbling about their ears. But he would not give her up. He had gone through much for her sake and was now ready to lay down his life if it would help her.

As Synnelet came forward to claim his new property, Manon cried out in terror and Fabien leaped at him like a madman. His hands went about Synnelet's throat. With a roar of pent up anger the Captain hurled himself upon Fabien and forced him back against the wall where he held him until reinforced by two husky sailors who had been hastily summoned by the Governor.

"I am sorry, sir," Fabien admitted to the Captain. "Let me explain—I am sure you will understand!"

"Throw this mad fool in with convicts," ordered the Captain. As the sailors bore him toward the door he fought madly like one possessed as he saw Synnelet struggling to take Manon into his arms.

The odds against Fabien were too great and he was thrown through the open hatch into the hold below. He fell upon the reeking, naked bodies of the half crazed convicts, and lay sprawled in their midst, unconscious from the impact of his fall.

Usual Sequence

A primary teacher had been trying to teach little Bertha to say "ate" instead of "et." She resolved to give it her personal attention. So when she arrived at school one morning the teacher asked her: "What did you do after you washed your face this morning, Bertha?" thinking she would say, "I ate my breakfast." But she received this very natural reply: "I dried it."—Indianapolis News.

CHAPTER XXIV

Manon was more terrified for Fabien's safety than for her own welfare. Her newly found love had completely shut out her former selfishness. It did not matter, now, what happened to her as long as Fabien was safe.

Sobbing—half hysterical—she struggled to leave the cabin. She wanted to follow the Captain and plead for Fabien. The old seaman had been so splendid to her that she did not realize how utterly hopeless any appeal would be since he had learned of their deceitfulness. No sacrifice that she could make would soften him enough to have Fabien removed from the hold of the ship. But Manon did not know this—she was sure the Captain would do as she wished and she fought madly to get by Synnelet who laughed and smiled in anticipated satisfaction and barred her way.

Manon's tiny fists beat hopelessly upon his chest but he only smiled in delight. He was much pleased with Manon and her fiery temper amused him greatly. Certainly it was an indication that his conquest would not be an easy one. However, that only added zest to his purpose. She was his property—there would be no opposition and he could take his time about taming her into sweet submission.

The Governor was well pleased with the situation. Before leaving the cabin he paused a moment and looked back at Manon as she struggled against Synnelet's advances; but he only smiled indulgently, shrugged his shoulders nonchalantly and walked away without interfering. It was no longer his affair. He had done his part, besides was he not young once, himself, and the hot blood of youth must be served.

Wildly and more fiercely Manon continued her struggle to escape from Synnelet, but with each effort her strength weakened. Her gown was torn and her gorgeous golden curls, sadly disheveled, were spread about her half naked shoulders like a golden halo of sunshine.

The nearness of Manon had aroused a passion within Synnelet that was fast getting beyond his desire to control. He had played with his beautiful new toy just as long as he could. Suddenly he seized her, brushed aside her arms and crushing her to him, kissed her madly.

Vainly Manon worked to free herself. Synnelet's burning kisses covered her neck and shoulders. His hard labored breathing fairly smothered her as she strove to turn her head away so that he could not find her lips. Then she felt herself lifted, bodily, in his hateful arms and carried across the cabin. Vaguely she sensed the easing of her body upon the couch and saw Synnelet's face strangely grotesque, as he leaned over her. Through a mist of tears his countenance seemed to become more and more indistinct. Shortly it disappeared entirely and Manon knew no more. She had fainted.

With the return of consciousness, Fabien sat up. His clothes were torn and his face and hands were covered with blood. He had not been stunned for very long because overhead he saw the sailors securely battening down the hatch cover through which he had been dropped. It was a dark, gloomy hold into which he had been thrown, literally stinking with sweat and filth. Above the dim rays of a ship's lantern sent down a faint light that enabled him to discern the convicts, scores of them, chained like animals to stanchions in the ship's beams.

They stared at him curiously. His sudden advent in their midst had aroused them, for a moment, from their apathy of despair into which days of confinement in their foul quarters had cast them. One or two of the men laughed—meaningless laughs inspired by crazed minds.

Still in a half daze Fabien gazed around and became conscious of their curiosity, their mocking voices and the clang of their chains. It all tended to bring back a swift remembrance of his fate. Like a madman he lurched to his feet and climbed up the iron grating to the locked hatch above where he pounded, vainly. It was useless. His bruised hands were but puny instruments for the giant task. Even his shoulders pressed with all his strength failed to make any impression. It was hopeless. He was unequal to the task. With a groan of despair he descended into the hold, fell back on the floor and buried his head in his hands.

Washington, Sept. 21—(UP)—Dwight W. Morrow of New Jersey has been chosen by President Coolidge as American ambassador to Mexico, succeeding James L. Sheffield, the White House announced yesterday.

It was indicated the Mexican government has informally approved the choice, though the appointment has not yet been made formal, according to the White House.

Morrow, who is one of the partners of the house of Morgan, New York, was a college mate of the president and has been a close unofficial White House adviser during the Coolidge administration.

Morrow has informed the president he will retire from his firm and he is expected to leave for his post within a few days.

Mr. Coolidge is said that Morrow is willing to make a sacrifice and abandon his business to take what the president considers one of the most important foreign missions.

He considers Morrow a most valuable man for the Mexican post, which has not been as much sought after as, for instance, European missions.

EVERYTHING GOING OUT AND NOTHING GOING IN

A. A. WEIDEMANN the other day gave a very thoughtful talk at the Rotary club on the propagation of fish.

"So many sportsmen and so many sportsmen journals think only of devising ways and means of taking out fish and never give a thought to putting anything back. Any one can plainly see the end of fishing when everything goes out and nothing goes in," said the speaker.

He mentioned a large number of game and fish magazines, etc., which never seemed to give a thought to replenishing a lake with fry. VALUE OF PURE MILK AND PURE WATER

IN a recent bulletin of the Minnesota State Department of Health, given wide distribution at the recent State Fair, stress was laid on the value of pure milk and pure water. We quote:

Before leaving the cabin he paused a moment and looked back at Manon as she struggled against Synnelet's advances; but he only smiled indulgently, shrugged his shoulders nonchalantly and walked away without interfering. It was no longer his affair. He had done his part, besides was he not young once, himself, and the hot blood of youth must be served.

Wildly and more fiercely Manon continued her struggle to escape from Synnelet, but with each effort her strength weakened. Her gown was torn and her gorgeous golden curls, sadly disheveled, were spread about her half naked shoulders like a golden halo of sunshine.

The nearness of Manon had aroused a passion within Synnelet that was fast getting beyond his desire to control. He had played with his beautiful new toy just as long as he could. Suddenly he seized her, brushed aside her arms and crushing her to him, kissed her madly.

Vainly Manon worked to free herself. Synnelet's burning kisses covered her neck and shoulders. His hard labored breathing fairly smothered her as she strove to turn her head away so that he could not find her lips. Then she felt herself lifted, bodily, in his hateful arms and carried across the cabin. Vaguely she sensed the easing of her body upon the couch and saw Synnelet's face strangely grotesque, as he leaned over her. Through a mist of tears his countenance seemed to become more and more indistinct. Shortly it disappeared entirely and Manon knew no more. She had fainted.

With the return of consciousness, Fabien sat up. His clothes were torn and his face and hands were covered with blood. He had not been stunned for very long because overhead he saw the sailors securely battening down the hatch cover through which he had been dropped.

It was a dark, gloomy hold into which he had been thrown, literally stinking with sweat and filth. Above the dim rays of a ship's lantern sent down a faint light that enabled him to discern the convicts, scores of them, chained like animals to stanchions in the ship's beams.

They stared at him curiously. His sudden advent in their midst had aroused them, for a moment, from their apathy of despair into which days of confinement in their foul quarters had cast them. One or two of the men laughed—meaningless laughs inspired by crazed minds.

Still in a half daze Fabien gazed around and became conscious of their curiosity, their mocking voices and the clang of their chains. It all tended to bring back a swift remembrance of his fate. Like a madman he lurched to his feet and climbed up the iron grating to the locked hatch above where he pounded, vainly. It was useless. His bruised hands were but puny instruments for the giant task. Even his shoulders pressed with all his strength failed to make any impression. It was hopeless. He was unequal to the task. With a groan of despair he descended into the hold, fell back on the floor and buried his head in his hands.

DWIGHT W. MORROW

NAMED NEW ENVOY

TO OLD MEXICO

Washington, Sept. 21—(UP)—Dwight W. Morrow of New Jersey has been chosen by President Coolidge as American ambassador to Mexico, succeeding James T. Sheffield, the White House announced yesterday.

It was indicated the Mexican government has informally approved the choice, though the appointment has not yet been made formal, according to the White House.

Morrow, who is one of the partners of the house of Morgan, New York, was a college mate of the president and has been a close unofficial White House adviser during the Coolidge administration.

Morrow has informed the president he will retire from his firm and he is expected to leave for his post within a few days.

Mr. Coolidge is glad that Morrow is willing to make a sacrifice and abandon his business to take what the president considers one of the most important foreign missions.

He considers Morrow a most valuable man for the Mexican post, which has not been as much sought after as, for instance, European missions.

QUICKLY IN CASE

St. Cloud, Minn., Sept. 21—(UP)—Lloyd Cutler, 17, awoke at the state reformatory here yesterday, conceding that the world moves fast after all.

Monday morning Cutler, who is from Blanchard, Ia., went on trial in district court at Minneapolis, charged with holding up a garage. Evidence was speedily introduced, and it took the jury 19 minutes to convict the youth. Judge Frank M. Nye pronounced sentence—from five to 40 years—and Cutler was started on his trip here.

From the time he entered the court room for trial until he departed, a convicted holdup man, was less than four hours.

Cutler was indicted with Robert Black, a Californian. Black pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 20 years at Stillwater penitentiary.

FARRELL SAYS DEMPSEY WILL WIN FIGHT

SPORTS EDITOR
HAS WATCHED
BOTH FIGHTERS

FARRELL'S OPINION THAT DEMPSEY WILL REGAIN HEAVY-WEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP

THINKS DEMPSEY IN PROPER CONDITION ALWAYS BETTER FIGHTER THAN TUNNEY

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Sept. 21.—After watching the two fighters in training and after considering the motives in the open letter writing preliminaries, the betting, weather and all other factors, it is the opinion of the writer that Jack Dempsey will regain the heavyweight championship of the world when he meets Gene Tunney here tomorrow night.

The opinion is based primarily on the belief that Dempsey, in proper condition, always has been a better fighter than Tunney and on the belief that Dempsey now is in perfect condition, mentally and physically.

Dempsey's work in his training camp certainly was more impressive than that of the champion's but it must be recalled that Tunney wasn't impressive in his work before the fight last year in Philadelphia.

Tunney never has been a flashy gymnasium fighter and Dempsey instinctively gives a great show every time he puts the gloves on but physical condition can always be observed in sparring bouts and Dempsey surely has shown in his training that he is in condition. Tunney also has given the appearance of perfect health and poise. But on the assumption that the two contestants are in perfect fighting condition, the verdict has to be given to Dempsey because he is a natural fighter.

The open letter that was supposed to have been sent to Tunney by Dempsey about arrangements that were made for Tunney before the Philadelphia fight last year should not be taken too seriously. No one can say definitely now what the purpose of the letter was but it was designed to get the goat of Tunney it failed because nothing can upset the confidence and poise of the champion.

Tunney, from what his millionaire friends say, considers the publication of the letter, as the act of some vulgar person and an act so vulgar that he had too much dignity to recognize it.

There are some opinions that the Dempsey letter was inspired by Lee Flynn for the purpose of getting Tunney's anger aroused so that the champion would be incensed into a slugging match. Tunney will not be aroused into rash tactics like Jack Sharkey was in his fight with Dempsey.

Money can be bet that he will fight just as he fought last year in Philadelphia. He is strictly a counter-fighter and he will fight the same way this time.

The betting odds are changing, and it is quite probable that Dempsey will be the favorite when he goes into the ring. The switch in the betting, however, is not too significant. It means principally that Dempsey is the popular favorite that the bettors figure he is in fighting condition and that he is still the champion.

Just before all these modern million dollar, two million dollar and three million dollar fights, there are stories heard about the operations of the big eastern gamblers, fixing of judges and referees, giving poison to the fighters and so on. The same stories are being passed around Chicago hotel lobbies now. They are worth what you think of them.

It is our opinion, however, that no one could reach either Dempsey or Tunney and in expressing that opinion the writer will have to leave himself open to the charge of being small town.

The weather factor also is entering into the discussion. Some of the experts figure that cold weather or rain, such as poured down on the fighters in Philadelphia will help Tunney.

Tunney, living for months in the New York mountains probably can get less chill out of the atmosphere than Dempsey who is a Californian but Dempsey did a lot of his training at night when it was chilly enough for the spectators at his camp to wear coats.

Flynn, Luvadis, Wilson and the other high minds of the Dempsey camp say—and they are betting heavily also on it—that Dempsey will win in a few rounds if Tunney will fight. But Tunney certainly will not be a reckless bravo like Sharkey was.

Tunney, beyond doubt will fight like Sharkey should have fought. His strategy will be to keep Dempsey's legs working on the assumption that Dempsey will kill himself but the smart Jimmy Bronson, who is going to handle the champion, knows that Dempsey, after a terrible

SPEEDY TUNNEY READY FOR JACK DEMPSEY

STREAK OF LIGHTNING SAYS
HE'S IN BEST OF CONDI-TION

ANXIOUS TO MEET THUNDER-
CLOUD, FORMER CHAMPION
DEMPSEY

By CLARK B. KELSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Cedar Crest Country Club, Lake Villa, Ills., Sept. 21.—(UP)—The speedy Tunney, a streak of lightning, today pronounced himself in the best condition of his life, and ready for the thundercloud, Jack Dempsey.

It's the noise of thunder that strikes terror, you'll recall, but it's the lightning that does the damage. The punching bag and the big raining boxing gloves have been packed in moth balls, awaiting the time Gene Tunney starts training for his next fight, following the one with Dempsey tomorrow night.

A five mile run on the hills of Cedar Crest today completed Tunney's preparations for the contest. His sparring partners have been dismissed. The champion, weighing three pounds more than he did when he entered the ring against Dempsey at Philadelphia a year ago has declared himself fit to fight. He will enter the ring weighing between 188 and 189 pounds.

Tunney had intended to go to Chicago today to await the fight but changed his plans, and will leave for the city tomorrow morning, arriving there in time to rest and weigh in six and one half hours before the battle.

Tunney brimmed over with confidence and with gay repartee today. In his final tussle with the punching bags yesterday, he showed his carefree mood, by joking, in his refined way with his friends at the ringside, as he smashed hooks and uppercuts to the "body" of the heavier bag.

Gene, it is plain, is angered rather than annoyed by the challenge levelled at him by Dempsey recently, that an attempt was made to "fix" their last fight and it appeared, that he will try to put the Utah mauler in his place tomorrow.

First two rounds, was much stronger than Sharkey was at the finish of the fight.

The sumup, in our opinion, is all a matter of condition. Dempsey is in condition and Dempsey in condition always has been a better fighter than the intellectual book reader.

An opportunity to regain half a game of their lead in the National league was given the Pirates today as their game with Brooklyn was the only one scheduled in the senior circuit. They lost again to the Dodgers yesterday, leaving them with a lead of three games only. The standing:

Bill Doak duplicated Dazzy Vance's shutout of the Pirates Tuesday and made it still more impressive by holding the Pirates to two hits. The score was 3 to 0.

The Giants lay-off gave the Cards an opportunity to go into a tie for second place and they made the most of it by defeating the Phils 5 to 4.

After the Braves had scored four runs before the end of the first inning, Jones relieved Weinert for the Cubs and his pitching coupled with an attack on Morrison gave Chicago an ultimate victory of 8 to 5. The score was tied 5-5 from the end of the second inning until the seventh when the Cubs forged ahead.

Bunched hits at critical times gave the Athletics two victories over the Browns in the final meeting of the two teams this season. Philadelphia won the first 4 to 1. In the second game Gaston yielded six runs to Philadelphia in the first inning. The result was 7 to 3.

Taking an early lead in both games of a double header, Detroit beat Boston 4 to 3 and 5 to 3.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 21.—(UP)—With the end of the season in sight, Kansas City and Milwaukee continued their battle today for the leadership in the American Association.

Kansas City is slated for two games with St. Paul on the home lot while Milwaukee engages Minneapolis at Milwaukee. A scant game separates Kansas City from Milwaukee lost. Today the Blues must win both games to retain any degree of safety in their leader berth. If both Kansas City and Milwaukee lose and Toledo wins, the Blues would be in first place for the first time since last month.

The season closes early next week.

struggled near the top of the come-back trail, rested at their training camps. Their managers and hangers-on devoted themselves to keeping the fighters in a proper frame of mind—for psychology, in this day when champions read books and consort with social leaders, has become a factor in prize fights.

Experts have watched Jack and Gene at work and at play, and have pronounced them physically "right." And, for lack of something better to base predictions on, they have written much of "attitudes of mind," of the "air of confidence" and of "mental fitness" for ten rounds of combat before 150,000 watchers.

But the man who bets on prize fights, and the man who talks about them, has his doubts.

Dempsey isn't going to knock Gene Tunney out with a tough wave to the jaw or a mental attitude hard in the solar plexus, they believe. Confidence won't pound an opponent's midriff until he gasps for breath, and no eye was ever blackened by psychological perfection.

Psychology and science aren't what the public will look for at Soldiers field tomorrow night. Left hooks and hard uppercuts that make red splashes and stagger conditioned fighters are what the spectators want. And whether Rickard fills his stadium with a capacity crowd of 170,000 for a $3,000,000 gate, or has to look at vacant seats, there will be either blood or boos, solid blows or catcalls, and a knockout or a lot of nasty rumors.

The boxing public—which apparently includes in this case the 150,000 or so persons who will attend the fight, and all of Chicago besides—may be cynical a week before a major ring skirmish, but the drama of a championship fight now has gripped the public as it always does on the eve of a big bout.

The sporting gentry who 24 hours ago were telling all comers that the whole thing was "in the bag" today were standing in line at betting offices to place their money on the champion or the ex-champion, and they were prepared to back their choices with argument, statistics and almost with blows.

Tunney still ruled the official favorite, with the odds shortened from 7 to 5 to 6 to 5; but Dempsey money was more plentiful than Tunney cash, and there was more than a possibility that the champion's slight edge would be lost before tomorrow night.

On the other hand, it was possible the champion's strong backers were holding their money for more favorable odds and would produce cash in plenty later today or tomorrow. At Philadelphia last year, it was recalled, Tunney money was scarce until a few hours before the fight, when it suddenly became remarkably plentiful.

The last legal obstacles apparently had been disposed of, although there was a possibility that the Rev. Elmer Williams might file a new injunction application in a state court. He was denied an injunction in federal court yesterday.

The parade of special trains into Chicago started today, and until late tomorrow afternoon all railroads will be lighted by the thousands into the city. British peers and New York gamblers, cabinet members and movie stars, and business magnates of international note were en route to Chicago, to see the fight.

Automobiles added their share of prospective spectators at the Rickard opera, and tomorrow airplanes also will bring their quotas.

While the thousands told each other who would win and why, Gene Tunney, the somewhat cultured and comparatively unpopular, and Jack Dempsey, the former champion who has

FARRELL SAYS DEMPSEY WILL WIN FIGHT

SPORTS EDITOR
HAS WATCHED
BOTH FIGHTERS

FARRELL'S OPINION THAT DEMPSEY WILL REGAIN HEAVY-WEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP

THINKS DEMPSEY IN PROPER CONDITION ALWAYS BETTER FIGHTER THAN TUNNEY

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Sept. 21.—After watching the two fighters in training and after considering the motives in the open letter writing preliminaries, the betting, weather and all other factors, it is the opinion of the writer that Jack Dempsey will regain the heavyweight championship of the world when he meets Gene Tunney here tomorrow night.

The opinion is based primarily on the belief that Dempsey, in proper condition, always has been a better fighter than Tunney and on the belief that Dempsey now is in perfect condition, mentally and physically.

Dempsey's work in his training camp certainly was more impressive than that of the champion's but it must be recalled that Tunney wasn't impressive in his work before the fight last year in Philadelphia.

Tunney never has been a flashy gymnasium fighter and Dempsey instinctively gives a great show every time he puts the gloves on but physical condition can always be observed in sparring bouts and Dempsey surely has shown in his training that he is in condition. Tunney also has given the appearance of perfect health and poise. But on the assumption that the two contestants are in perfect fighting condition, the verdict has to be given to Dempsey because he is a natural fighter.

The open letter that was supposed to have been sent to Tunney by Dempsey about arrangements that were made for Tunney before the Philadelphia fight last year should not be taken too seriously. No one can say definitely now what the purpose of the letter was but if it was designed to get the goat of Tunney it failed because nothing can upset the confidence and poise of the champion.

Tunney, from what his millionaire friends say, considers the publication of the letter, as the act of some vulgar person and an act so vulgar that he had too much dignity to recognize it.

There are some opinions that the Dempsey letter was inspired by Lee Flynn for the purpose of getting Tunney's anger aroused so that the champion would be incensed into a slugging match. Tunney will not be aroused into rash tactics like Jack Sharkey was in his fight with Dempsey.

Money can be bet that he will fight just as he fought last year in Philadelphia. He is strictly a counter-fighter and he will fight the same way this time.

The betting odds are changing and it is quite probable that Dempsey will be the favorite when he goes into the ring. The switch in the betting, however, is not too significant. It means principally that Dempsey is the popular favorite that the bettors figure he is in fine fighting condition and that he is still the champion.

Just before all these modern million dollar, two million dollar and three million dollar fights, there are stories heard about the operations of the big eastern gamblers, fixing of judges and referees, giving poison to the fighters and so on. The same stories are being passed around Chicago hotel lobbies now. They are worth what you think of them.

It is our opinion, however, that no one could reach either Dempsey or Tunney and in expressing that opinion the writer will have to leave himself open to the charge of being small town.

The weather factor also is entering into the discussion. Some of the experts figure that cold weather or rain, such as poured down on the fighters in Philadelphia will help Tunney.

Tunney, living for months in the New York mountains probably can get less chill out of the atmosphere than Dempsey who is a Californian but Dempsey did a lot of his training at night when it was chilly enough for the spectators at his camp to wear coats.

Flynn, Luvadis, Wilson and the other high minds of the Dempsey camp say—and they are betting heavily also on it—that Dempsey will win in a few rounds if Tunney will fight. But Tunney certainly will not be a reckless bravado like Sharkey was.

Tunney, beyond doubt will fight like Sharkey should have fought. His strategy will be to keep Dempsey's legs working on the assumption that Dempsey will kill himself but the smart Jimmy Bronson, who is going to handle the champion, knows that Dempsey, after a terrible

STREAK OF LIGHTNING SAYS
HE'S IN BEST OF CONDI-TION

ANXIOUS TO MEET THUNDER-
CLOUD, FORMER CHAMPION
DEMPSEY

By CLARK B. KELSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Cedar Crest Country Club, Lake Villa, Ills., Sept. 21.—(UP)—The speedy Tunney, a streak of lightning, today pronounced himself in the best condition of his life, and ready for the thundercloud, Jack Dempsey.

It's the noise of thunder that strikes terror, you'll recall, but it's the lightning that does the damage. The punching bags and the big raining boxing gloves have been packed in moth balls, awaiting the time Gene Tunney starts training for his next fight, following the one with Dempsey tomorrow night.

A five mile run on the hills of Cedar Crest today completed Tunney's preparations for the contest. His sparring partners have been dismissed. The champion, weighing three pounds more than he did when he entered the ring against Dempsey at Philadelphia a year ago has declared himself fit to fight. He will enter the ring weighing between 188 and 189 pounds.

Tunney had intended to go to Chicago today to await the fight but changed his plans, and will leave for the city tomorrow morning, arriving there in time to rest and weigh in six and one half hours before the battle.

Tunney brimmed over with confidence and with gay repartee today. In his final tussle with the punching bags yesterday, he showed his carefree mood, by joking, in his refined way with his friends at the ringside, as he smashed hooks and uppercuts to the "body" of the heavier bag.

Gene, it is plain, is angered rather than annoyed by the challenge leveled at him by Dempsey recently, that an attempt was made to "fix" their last fight and it appeared, that he will try to put the Utah mauler in his place tomorrow.

First two rounds, was much stronger than Sharkey was at the finish of the fight. The sum-up, in our opinion, is all a matter of condition. Dempsey is in condition and Dempsey in condition always has been a better fighter than the intellectual book reader.

PIRATES HAVE CHANCE FOR ADVANCEMENT

GAME WITH BROOKLYN IS THE

THEY LOST AGAIN TO THE DOD-
WITH 3 GAME LEAD

(By United Press)

An opportunity to regain half a game of their lead in the National league was given the Pirates today as their game with Brooklyn was the only one scheduled in the senior circuit. They lost again to the Dodgers yesterday, leaving them with a lead of three games only. The standing:

Team	W.	L.	Pct.

Boston	56	88	.389
Philadelphia	48	96	.333

Psychology and science aren't what the public will look for at Soldiers field tomorrow night. Left hooks and hard uppercuts that make red splatters and stagger conditioned fighters are what the spectators want. And whether Rickard fills his stadium with a capacity crowd of 170,000 for a $3,000,000 gate, or has to look at vacant seats, there will be either blood or boos, solid blows or catcalls, and a knockout or a lot of nasty rumors.

The boxing public—which apparently includes in this case the 150,000 or so persons who will attend the fight, and all of Chicago besides—may be cynical a week before a major ring skirmish, but the drama of a championship fight now has gripped the public as it always does on the eve of a big bout.

The sporting gentry who 24 hours ago were telling at comers that the whole thing was "in the bag" today were standing in line at betting offices to place their money on the champion or the ex-champion, and they were prepared to back their choices with argument, statistics and almost with blunts.

Tunney still ruled the official favorite, with the odds shortened from 7 to 5 to 6 to 5; but Dempsey money was more plentiful than Tunney cash, and there was more than a possibility that the champion's slight edge would be lost before tomorrow night.

On the other hand, it was possible the champion's strong backers were holding their money for more favorable odds and would produce cash in plenty later today or tomorrow. At Philadelphia last year, it was recalled, Tunney money was scarce until a few hours before the fight, when it suddenly became remarkably plentiful.

The last legal obstacles apparently had been disposed of, although there was a possibility that the Rev. Elmer Williams might file a new injunction application in a state court. He was denied an injunction in federal court yesterday.

The parade of special trains into Chicago started today, and until late tomorrow afternoon all railroads will be lighted fans by the thousands into the city. British peers and New York gamblers, cabinet members and movie stars, and business magnates of international note were en route to Chicago, to see the fight.

Automobiles added their share of prospective spectators at the Rickard opera, and tomorrow airplanes also will bring their quota.

While the thousands told each other who would win and why, Gene Tunney, the somewhat cultured and comparatively unpopular, and Jack Dempsey, the former champion who has struggled near the top of the comeback trail, rested at their training camps. Their managers and hangers-on devoted themselves to keeping the fighters in a proper frame of mind—for psychology, in this day when champions read books and consort with social leaders, has become a factor in prize fights.

Experts have watched Jack and Gene at work and at play, and have pronounced them physically "right." And, for lack of something better to base predictions on, they have written much of "attitudes of mind," of the "air of confidence" and of "mental fitness" for ten rounds of combat before 150,000 watchers.

But the man who bets on prize fights, and the man who talks about them, has his doubts.

Dempsey isn't going to knock Gene Tunney out with a tough wave to the jaw or a mental attitude hard in the solar plexus, they believe. Confidence won't pound an opponent's midriff until he gasps for breath, and no eye was ever blackened by psychological perfection.

Psychology and science aren't what the public will look for at Soldiers field tomorrow night. Left hooks and hard uppercuts that make red splatters and stagger conditioned fighters are what the spectators want. And whether Rickard fills his stadium with a capacity crowd of 170,000 for a $3,000,000 gate, or has to look at vacant seats, there will be either blood or boos, solid blows or catcalls, and a knockout or a lot of nasty rumors.

NINE PLANES OF CLASS A LEAVE ST. PAUL TODAY

FIRST TO HOP OFF WAS THAT OF
E. E. BALLOUGH AT 6:30:15 A. M.

WITH BALLOUGH WAS CHARLES
W. DICKINSON, 69
YEARS OLD

BY JACK F. HIERTZ
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

St. Paul, Sept. 21—UP—Leaving at intervals of one minute nine airplanes in the A. Class of the New York to Spokane air derby hopped off from the airport here today.

The first plane to leave the field headed for Aberdeen, S. D., where the planes will re-fuel was that of E. E. Ballough, flying a Laird Commercial, No. 6. Ballough was the first arrival yesterday on the New York to St. Paul leg. He took off at 6:30:15 A. M. today.

With Ballough was Charles V. Dickinson of Chicago, 69 years old enthusiast of aeronautics.

The second plane to depart was piloted by C. W. "Speed" Holman, of St. Paul. He was flying a Laird Commercial plane, No. 4. After a conference late yesterday in which L. J. Shields, president of the National Lead Battery Co., of St. Paul, and backer of Holman, sought to withdraw the plane from the race, Holman is said to have indicated he is willing to take whatever chances necessary to win the derby. Shields argued that disaster which his two ships in the Class A. race caused him to desire that his plane be withdrawn.

Others to take off at one minute intervals were:

No. 11—Buhl Airster, N. B. Mamer, Spokane, Wash.

No. 13—Waco, Tex Rankin, Portland, Ore.

No. 8—Waco, John P. Wood, Wausau, Wis.

No. 7—Yackey, E. H. Lee, Chicago

No. 2—Yackey, E. K. Campbell, Moline, Ill.

No. 3—Ryan, E. W. Cleveland, Cleveland, O.

No. 12—Pitcairn Mailwing, James Rae, Philadelphia.

Verne Roberts of Fargo, N. D., piloting a Mono-Coupe in the class B. race arrived here at 6:45 a. m. today. He was forced down in Wisconsin on the Chicago to St. Paul lap yesterday. He was not decided whether he will continue in the race.

Ballough departed with a lead of 11 minutes over his nearest opponent, C. W. Holman, and a lead of one hour and 16 minutes over N. C. Mamer who is in third place.

The hop-off originally scheduled for 5:30 o'clock was delayed an hour at the request of Spokane airport officials who feared the planes would arrive before the tentative schedule. The first arrival here yesterday was several hours ahead of the estimated time.

Derby officials here today announced that a change in deciding the winner of the race had been decided upon. The arrivals will be over a tape in front of the judges stand with the planes flying at full speed. It originally had been planned that the time the plane wheels hit the ground would be used to judge the flying time.

Improved flying weather was in store for the flyers on the St. Paul-Spokane leg. High head winds against which the aviators fought over much of the route from Chicago to St. Paul had diminished and a sunny sky made for improved visibility. Fair weather over most of the route was predicted.

At Aberdeen a five minute stop for all planes was scheduled to permit refueling.

Plane No. 66, of B. Class piloted by Memmo Black of Chicago, reached the airport during the night. The pilot decided not to continue to Spokane and will be returned to Chicago.

R. E. Duke of Pittsburgh, flying No. 50 in B Class was forced down by darkness near St. Paul during the night and took off for Fargo at 8:12 a. m.

The monocoque piloted by Roberts who was forced down in Wisconsin yesterday and reached the airport this morning will be unable to leave the airport pending arrival from Detroit of a new motor.

Roberts made a last minute change of mind and at 9:52 a. m. resumed his flight in the Class B. race to Fargo. He did not say as to whether he would continue from that point.

BALLOUGH ARRIVES AT ABERDEEN, S. D.

Aberdeen, S. D., Sept. 21—UP—E. E. Ballough, pilot, and Charles V. Dickinson, passenger, Chicago, arrived here at 8:38 a. m. today from St. Paul in the class B plane of the Spokane derby, a Laird Commercial No. 6, and departed at 8:43 for Miles City, Mont.

Charles C. Holman of St. Paul in a Laird Commercial, No. 4, arrived second at 8:42 a. m. and left at 8:47. Third to arrive was N. B. Mamer of Spokane, in his Buhl Airster, No. 11, at 8:48 a. m. and departed at 8:53.

No. 13, a Waco piloted by Tex Rankin, Portland, arrived next at 8:50 and left for Miles City five minutes later.

Waco plane, No. 8 piloted by John P. Wood, Wausau, arrived at 8:50 and left at 8:55.

No. 7—Yackey, E. H. Lee, Chicago, arrived 9:00 left 9:10.

No. 12—Pitcairn Mailwing, James Rae, Philadelphia, arrived 9:04; left 9:09.

No. 2—Yackey, E. K. Campbell, Moline, Ill., arrived 9:09, left 9:16. No. 3—Ryan, E. W. Cleveland, of Cleveland, arrived 9:19, departed at 9:32.

Another lap of the Class A. race was completed with the arrival and departure here of nine planes which left St. Paul this morning.

The fliers are making fast time in view of greatly improved atmospheric conditions over the time of the flight from New York to St. Paul.

BALLOUGH LEADING CONSISTENTLY

Miles City, Mont.—Still setting the pace on Class A division, E. E. Ballough arrived here at 10:27 a. m. and departed for Butte, the next control stop at 10:37 a. m.

Butte is the last control stop in this division of the great air derby which will terminate at Spokane.

Ballough, who has been leading consistently in this division of the race was followed closely by three others.

C. G. Holman, in another Laird Commercial, was in at 10:51 and out again at 11 a. m.

N. B. Mamer, piloting the "City of Spokane" arrived at 11:01 a. m. and took off at 11:09:28.

John Wood in a Waco, was in at 11:17 a. m. and out again 11:23:30.

NINE PLANES OF CLASS A LEAVE ST. PAUL TODAY

FIRST TO HOP OFF WAS THAT OF E. E. BALLOUGH AT 6:30:15 A. M.

WITH BALLOUGH WAS CHARLES W. DICKINSON, 69 YEARS OLD

BY JACK F. HIERTZ (United Press Staff Correspondent)

St. Paul, Sept. 21—UP—Leaving at intervals of one minute nine airplanes in the A. Class of the New York to Spokane air derby hopped off from the airport here today.

The first plane to leave the field headed for Aberdeen, S. D., where the planes will re-fuel was that of E. E. Ballough, flying a Laird Commercial, No. 6. Ballough was the first arrival yesterday on the New York to St. Paul leg. He took off at 6:30:15 A. M. today.

With Ballough was Charles W. Dickinson of Chicago, 69 years old enthusiast of aeronautics.

The second plane to depart was piloted by C. W. "Speed" Holman, of St. Paul. He was flying a Laird Commercial plane, No. 4. After a conference late yesterday in which L. J. Shields, president of the National Lead Battery Co., of St. Paul, and backer of Holman, sought to withdraw the plane from the race, Holman is said to have indicated he is willing to take whatever chances necessary to win the derby. Shields argued that disaster which hit two ships in the Class A. race caused him to desire that his plane be withdrawn.

Others to take off at one minute intervals were:

No. 11—Buhl Airster, N. B. Mamer, Spokane, Wash.

No. 13—Waco, Tex Rankin, Portland, Ore.

No. 8—Waco, John P. Wood, Wausau, Wis.

No. 7—Yackey, E. H. Lee, Chicago

No. 2—Yackey, E. K. Campbell, Moline, Ill.

No. 3—Ryan, E. W. Cleveland, Cleveland, O.

No. 12—Pittsairn Mailwing, James Rae, Philadelphia.

Verne Roberts of Fargo, N. D., piloting a Mono-Coupe in the Class B. race arrived here at 6:45 a. m. today. He was forced down in Wisconsin on the Chicago to St. Paul lap yesterday. He was not decided whether he will continue in the race.

Ballough departed with a lead of 11 minutes over his nearest opponent, C. W. Holman, and a lead of one hour and 16 minutes over N. C. Mamer who is in third place.

The hop-off originally scheduled for 5:30 o'clock was delayed an hour at the request of Spokane airport officials who feared the planes would arrive before the tentative schedule. The first arrival here yesterday was several hours ahead of the estimated time.

Derby officials here today announced that a change in deciding the winner of the race had been decided upon. The arrivals will be over a tape in front of the judges stand with the planes flying at full speed. It originally had been planned that the time the plane wheels hit the ground would be used to judge the flying time.

Improved flying weather was in store for the flyers on the St. Paul-Spokane leg. High head winds against which the aviators fought over much of the route from Chicago to St. Paul had diminished and a sunny sky made for improved visibility. Fair weather over most of the route was predicted.

At Aberdeen a five minute stop for all planes was scheduled to permit refueling.

Plane No. 66, of B. Class piloted by Memmo Black of Chicago, reached the airport during the night. The pilot decided not to continue to Spokane and will be returned to Chicago.

R. E. Dake of Pittsburgh, flying No. 59 in B Class was forced down by darkness near St. Paul during the night and took off for Fargo at 8:12 a. m.

The monocoque piloted by Roberts who was forced down in Wisconsin yesterday and reached the airport this morning will be unable to leave the airport pending arrival from Detroit of a new motor.

Roberts made a last minute change of mind and at 9:52 a. m. resumed his flight in the Class B. race to Fargo. He did not say as to whether he would continue from that point.

BALLOUGH ARRIVES AT ABERDEEN, S. D.

Aberdeen, S. D., Sept. 21—UP—E. E. Ballough, pilot, and Charles V. Dickinson, passenger, Chicago, arrived here at 8:38 a. m. today from St. Paul in the class B plane of the Spokane derby, a Laird Commercial, No. 6, and departed at 8:43 for Miles City, Mont.

Charles C. Holman of St. Paul in a Laird Commercial, No. 4, arrived second at 8:42 a. m. and left at 8:47. Third to arrive was N. B. Mamer of Spokane, in his Buhl Airster, No. 11, at 8:48 a. m. and departed at 8:53.

No. 13, a Waco piloted by Tex Rankin, Portland, arrived next at 8:50 and left for Miles City five minutes later.

Waco plane, No. 8 piloted by John P. Wood, Wausau, arrived at 8:50 and left at 8:55.

No. 7—Yackey, E. H. Lee, Chicago, arrived 9:00 left 9:10.

No. 12—Pittsairn Mailwing, James Rae, Philadelphia, arrived 9:04; left 9:09.

No. 2—Yackey, E. K. Campbell, Moline, Ill., arrived 9:09, left 9:16. No. 3—Ryan, E. W. Cleveland, of Cleveland, arrived 9:19, departed at 9:22.

Another lap of the Class A. race was completed with the arrival and departure here of nine planes which left St. Paul this morning.

The fliers are making fast time in view of greatly improved atmospheric conditions over the time of the flight from New York to St. Paul.

BALLOUGH LEADING CONSISTENTLY

Miles City, Mont.—Still setting the pace on Class A division, E. E. Ballough arrived here at 10:27 a. m. and departed for Butte, the next control stop at 10:37 a. m.

Butte is the last control stop in this division of the great air derby which will terminate at Spokane.

Ballough, who has been leading consistently in this division of the race was followed closely by three others.

C. G. Holman, in another Laird Commercial, was in at 10:51 and out again at 11 a. m.

N. B. Mamer, piloting the "City of Spokane" arrived at 11:01 a. m. and took off at 11:09:28.

John Wood in a Waco, was in at 11:17 a. m. and out again 11:23:30.

SAYS HE WAS RESTRAINED FROM SEINING CARP

Faribault, Minn., Sept. 21—(UP)—Asserting that the Minnesota Commercial Fishermen's Association was restraining him from seining carp from General Shield and Hunt's lakes in Rice county because he is not a member of the association, H. He said he would begin fishing operations as soon as the weather permitted. He will be assisted, he declared, by J. P. Daugherty.

Donaldson, who is a brother-in-law of Gov. Christianson, said that when he and Daugherty applied for membership in the association, they were turned down.

He claimed to be the only bidder for the job of seining the lakes of the rough fish.

SHOOTING DETAILS TOLD BY WITNESS

Mrs. Mal Bloomstrom Explains Benson's Rampage With Gun on Farm

YOUTH HANGED HIMSELF

Fired Five Shots at Relatives Before He Was Overpowered and Taken to Jail

Mrs. Mal Bloomstrom, Northeast Brainerd, sister of Mrs. Carl Everett Benson, an eye witness of the events leading up to the arrest of Everett Benson at the Bloomstrom farm at Jenkins Saturday, this morning told her story to the Dispatch.

Young Benson hanged himself in his cell at the Walker jail early Sunday morning where he had been bound over from the Pine River jail.

Mrs. Bloomstrom stated: "Mr. and Mrs. Charles Benson, of Northeast Brainerd brought Everett Benson and his wife to the Bloomstrom farm Friday night and left them there without asking if they could stay. Being a relative and friend, I thought it my duty to give them a place to sleep for the night. Saturday morning, I and my two little boys, Bobby and Jimmy and Mrs. Benson took the car and went down to the hay meadow to bring lunch to the men working down there. We came back with my uncle, Axel Fremling and brother Sam Fremling for dinner. I drove the car and parked it beside the kitchen window. As we were going into the house, Everett came from the woods with Mr. Bloomstrom's 16 gauge double barrel shotgun which he had taken from the house of his own accord while we were down to the meadow.

"My brother thinking he had been prairie chicken hunting, asked him 'did you get anything?' He said no. He walked around to the side of the house by the side door and my uncle walked with him and asked him for the gun because he wanted to shoot a chicken he saw in the woods.

"Instead of handing over the gun, he stepped back about half a dozen steps, pointed the gun at my uncle and fired a shot. My uncle said he could feel it as it went past his ear but it missed him. We were in the house at this time. He walked over to the car, keeping the gun pointed at my uncle, and pulled the wires loose from the dash board of the car. He then made the remark, 'I am going to blow up the house.' He came around to the kitchen door and kicked it and the lock off with his foot. All this time he continued to cover my uncle with the gun. I hollered to Everett not to shoot. He said, 'where's Esther?' I replied that she had gone out by way of the bedroom window. He ran around to the side of the house where she would be coming out and the minute he saw her he fired a shot but missed her too.

"I started to go towards him and asked him not to shoot because I had two small boys in the yard. He fired at me and I ducked. The shot just missed me, splattering against the wall. He then kept on walking around the yard with the gun leveled from his hip. He would say 'stand back' if we got too close. My sister, Mrs. Benson, told him that if he would not shoot anyone else, she would go with him. He said 'all right, come on'. She got beside him and he started for the woods across the road from the farm. My uncle and I followed. She had her arm on his left shoulder and took hold of the barrel of the gun and he fired two shots directly at my uncle and I. Then she took hold of the gun with both hands and twisted it out of his hands. She hollered 'hurry' and we got hold of him. My sister ran into the house with the gun and my uncle and I had all we could do to hold him down till my brother brought us a strap to tie his hands together. We then took him in our car to the authorities at Pine River. My son, Jimmy Bloomstrom, six year old who was there at the time of the scene has been confined at his grandmother's home in a hysterical condition. There was no argument whatever in our house before the shooting."

Mrs. Bloomstrom displayed one of the shells taken from the shotgun. It had been cut with a knife about half way up so that when fired the half of the shell would leave the barrel, which could serve the purpose of a rifle.

SHOOTING DETAILS TOLD BY WITNESS

Mrs. Mal Bloomstrom Explains Benson's Rampage With Gun on Farm

YOUTH HANGED HIMSELF

Fired Five Shots at Relatives Before He Was Overpowered and Taken to Jail

Mrs. Mal Bloomstrom, Northeast Brainerd, sister of Mrs. Carl Everett Benson, an eye witness of the events leading up to the arrest of Everett Benson at the Bloomstrom farm at Jenkins Saturday, this morning told her story to the Dispatch.

Young Benson hanged himself in his cell at the Walker jail early Sunday morning where he had been bound over from the Pine River jail.

Mrs. Bloomstrom stated: "Mr. and Mrs. Charles Benson, of Northeast Brainerd brought Everett Benson and his wife to the Bloomstrom farm Friday night and left them there without asking if they could stay. Being a relative and friend, I thought it my duty to give them a place to sleep for the night. Saturday morning, I and my two little boys, Bobby and Jimmy and Mrs. Benson took the car and went down to the hay meadow to bring lunch to the men working down there. We came back with my uncle, Axel Fremling and brother Sam Fremling for dinner. I drove the car and parked it beside the kitchen window. As we were going into the house, Everett came from the woods with Mr. Bloomstrom's 16 gauge double barrel shotgun which he had taken from the house of his own accord while we were down to the meadow.

"My brother thinking he had been prairie chicken hunting, asked him 'did you get anything?' He said no. He walked around to the side of the house by the side door and my uncle walked with him and asked him for the gun because he wanted to shoot a chicken he saw in the woods.

"Instead of handing over the gun, he stepped back about half a dozen steps, pointed the gun at my uncle and fired a shot. My uncle said he could feel it as it went past his ear but it missed him. We were in the house at this time. He walked over to the car, keeping the gun pointed at my uncle, and pulled the wires loose from the dash board of the car. He then made the remark, 'I am going to blow up the house.' He came around to the kitchen door and kicked it and the lock off with his foot. All this time he continued to cover my uncle with the gun. I hollered to Everett not to shoot. He said, 'where's Esther?' I replied that she had gone out by way of the bedroom window. He ran around to the side of the house where she would be coming out and the minute he saw her he fired a shot but missed her too.

"I started to go towards him and asked him not to shoot because I had two small boys in the yard. He fired at me and I ducked. The shot just missed me, splattering against the wall. He then kept on walking around the yard with the gun levelled from his hip. He would say 'stand back' if we got too close. My sister, Mrs. Benson, told him that if he would not shoot anyone else, she would go with him. He said 'all right, come on'. She got beside him and he started for the woods across the road from the farm. My uncle and I followed. She had her arm on his left shoulder and took hold of the barrel of the gun and he fired two shots directly at my uncle and I. Then she took hold of the gun with both hands and twisted it out of his hands. She hollered 'hurry' and we got hold of him. My sister ran into the house with the gun and my uncle and I had all we could do to hold him down till my brother brought us a strap to tie his hands together. We then took him in our car to the authorities at Pine River. My son, Jimmy Bloomstrom, six year old who was there at the time of the scene has been confined at his grandmother's home in a hysterical condition. There was no argument whatever in our house before the shooting."

Mrs. Bloomstrom displayed one of the shells taken from the shotgun. It had been cut with a knife about half way up so that when fired the half of the shell would leave the barrel, which could serve the purpose of a rifle.

The Bolshevism of Brush Creek

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

"I WONDER why people love to say such horrid things," Marcia speculated.

"Natural cussedness—politely called original sin," Leesy said through the corner of her mouth.

"For instance, the Wests won't go anywhere," Marcia went on, "not even to church, since it got out that Jen's wedding clothes are still unpaid for—and that skinflint lives threatening suit. He knows they'll pay when they can, but keeps dunning them."

"Personal spite there—Jen could have had that goggle-eyed young Ives for just the taking," Leesy explained. "Goggle-eye propped himself on Jen's piazza three Sundays running, after scraping acquaintance with her Saturdays when she brought in their truck. Mose West invited him to stay away, ever so politely—told him Jen was his girl, and he didn't want a real dangerous rival. Goggle-eye proposed the very next day over the telephone—so next time Mose clean forgot to be polite—scared the Ives hope out of at least a year's growth."

"So that's the real low-down of it," Marcia laughed. "Something ought to be done about it. But how about a boycott?"

"With trimmings!" Leesy cried joyously. "Now that we all can vote, let's organize against the Oppression of the Unearned Increment in the shape of long credits to old Pat Logan. His megs are all set to run for circuit judge in September. The decent poor and the simply decent can't if they will, snow him under out of sight. Just get together, make-believe to turn Bolshevism. I'll bet you turn out angels of rescue to everybody in debt."

"Which means nearly everybody in the county."

"Say—do you know how long it takes to stop a mortgage sale?" Leesy asked abruptly.

"I can find out."

"I'm thinking of the Graysons," Leesy said. "They—they've had such dreadful luck—losing hogs with cholera, more than a hundred—worth enough to have left them free and clear; then lightning struck their stock barn—not insured through lack of money—which meant new teams on credit—at double price with interest."

Thus was hatched Brush Creek's outbreak of Bolshevism enthusiasm that drew to that delectable region more than state-wide attention. Marcia and Leesy had laid all cards on the table before uncles, nephews, cousins, sweethearts present and prospective, also their grievances—which had enough of reality to make them tenable.

Their prize investigator was Joe Grayson, who looked so innocent and asked such simple questions nobody feared to tell him anything. That is to say, except Marcia Lytle—who let her eyes only tell him she loved him. Leesy knew without telling, being herself in much the same case regarding young Langley who had mortgaged his future for a loan from a speculative dealer in grain, in hope thus to make a quick fortune.

First storm clouds had risen in June to darken the political skies of sundry excellent gentlemen. Marcia and Leesy and their coadjutors for six weeks worked under cover. Suddenly burst the era of barbecues—plentiful roast meat to lure the sovereigns within earshot of orators who could charm birds from the trees, followed more barbecues—money being talked through them on the other side, then three days before election, every highway was placarded, "Citizens, vote to secure every man in what is justly his own—but not to let him take away through usury what belongs to his neighbor." Then letter boxes overran with printed transcripts of court proceedings where law had prevailed to the undoing of justice—likewise statistics of what the county had lost potentially through the enforced emigration of so much of its best blood. More than one millionaire was in the roster, eke judges, railroad men, engineers, merchant-traders, what not—all under the heading: "They went away to find their chances—chances denied them at home."

No need to wait till votes were counted—admittedly the Bolshevists had won, hands down. Sancy Leesy pinched an ear of the kidnapped Joe Grayson, saying softly: "I'm happy—happy enough to die. Don't grudge it—if you are a man. First chance I ever had to feel I'd really helped the right side. We'll do it again—me and Marcia—when it comes to voting for the new bridge at New Year. That means fat chances of hauling and so on for you and Billy Langley," flushing in spite of herself as she spoke the name; "and you go ask Marcia what she thinks of a nice double wedding at Christmas. She'd be awfully plagued if she had to ask you herself."

"Don't trifle! I've stood all I can today," Joe said huskily. "You don't—you can't think I've even half a chance!"

"A whole chance with bells and blue ribbon on it, also a wedding ring!" Leesy laughed—then as Joe grabbed her hand and all but crushed it: "Find Billy Langley and tell him about the plan—and if he threatens to run away, paste him one in the eye."

30,000 Tractors in France

Fully 30,000 tractors have been put to work in France since the World war.

Gopher Star Wins Two Captaincies

Two captaincies in major sports have been voted to Mally Nydahl, University of Minnesota athlete, in a single year. As a senior Nydahl will head the basketball and baseball teams of the Gopher school next year. He is counted upon also as a mainstay in the backfield of the football team.

Nydahl went in as a substitute halfback in the Minnesota-Wisconsin football game last autumn and ran back a punt 75 yards to give his team a last-minute victory. He matched the feat in the baseball season by delivering a home run with the bases full.

WOULDN'T PLAY BALL ON SUNDAY

Not a Fanatic on Subject, but Rickey Obeys Mother.

Seamed and wrinkled by his generation in the service of baseball, Joe Sugden, coach of the Phillies, recently unbuttoned himself of a secret that has tortured the imagination of fan and player alike for years. Indeed, curiosity, on and off the diamond, has been harassed and excited by this un-revealed tale of the diamond—the reason why Branch Rickey never would play Sunday baseball.

Rickey was manager of the Browns after an inconspicuous role as player. He became vice president of the St. Louis Cardinals, present monarchs of bat and ball, a position in which he still sits in majesty and security. Rickey is a man of many ideas, many plans, many schemes, writes Gordon Mackay in the Indianapolis Star. To his diamond cronies he is a man to esteem, to admire and to hail as a pioneer in the sport which has become the great national delirium.

Therefore it was no surprise when Rickey developed a streak of stubbornness against playing on Sunday. It was just one of Rickey's queer whims, argued the fans or laughed the players. Yet none really knew the reason why the Browns' manager voluntarily exiled himself from the bench on the Sabbath.

No religious scruples dictated this course. It was filial obedience, a promise which he had made to his white-haired mother back in Lucasville, Ohio, when he first ventured into professional baseball. It was this same loyalty of son to parent that buttressed him in his stand, when jeered by fans, snubbed by players and scorned by the joyous souls who write the drama of baseball daily.

"Rickey told me why he wouldn't play baseball on Sunday," declared Sugden. When he told his mother he was going to join the Browns as a ball player, the sweet-faced old lady said to him:

"Branch, don't play on Sunday."

Rickey said he wouldn't and he never did. But he wasn't any fanatic about the question. He wasn't against Sunday baseball, as a lot of claps think. He was panned and roasted well, and a lot of baseball writers used to go over him in pretty raw style.

Cuyler Going Good

Hazen ("Kiki") Cuyler, star outfielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who was out of the game considerably earlier in the season on account of injuries, has fully recovered and is putting up his usual clever game in the field and is also hitting the ball hard.

Important That Hurlers Have Well Trained Legs

Pitchers must have good legs. They need them as much, if not more, than infielders and outfielders. If the pitcher's legs are not properly trained he cannot pitch his best.

The fact that many pitchers weaken toward the close of a game can in most cases be traced to legs improperly trained or not trained at all. That is plausible. A man cannot pitch good ball when his underpinning is weak.

Pitchers do more work than the other players combined. The pitcher is the only man on the field who is continuously in action.

The pitcher, if he trained his legs properly and made it a point to develop speed, could win a few games himself by base running. A number of games are lost each year because the pitcher is helpless when on the bases.

Mary Had a Little Lamb

By JANE OSBORN

IT WAS the summer after Mary Lester's sophomore year in the state university that she met Bob Lamb at a country house-party. Bob Lamb had just finished his junior year at a smaller college. It was perfectly clear from the end of the first day at the hospitable old farmhouse that Mary liked Bob and that Bob was smitten with Mary. Bob did not hesitate to tell Mary of his feelings for her. For the time all he begged of her was that she would permit him to be somewhere near her. It was Mary's idea, then, that Bob should transfer himself from the smaller college and enter the senior class of the university that she attended.

So when Mary went back to college it was noised abroad that she had brought a "heavy suitor" with her. The girls in her fraternity house laughed at her and with her. Then one of them sitting at the piano began softly playing the strains of "Mary Had a Little Lamb."

The girls took up the words and Mary sat there blushing.

"But Bob Lamb's fleece isn't as white as snow," protested Mary weakly. "He has black hair."

"But he did follow you to school one day—you'll have to admit it," laughed one of the girls, and they went on singing their song.

Bob Lamb had been transferred from the fraternity in his own college to the chapter in the university where it was soon passed around that they had a girl to thank for the transfer.

"Nice girl—Mary Lester—a junior Gamma Sigma," informed one of the men. "Someone ought to drop a word of thanks to Mary—she did us a good turn."

One of the men who had listened to the remark began softly whistling the notes of "Mary Had a Little Lamb."

Someone with a bass voice began croaking the words. A tenor took it up. Two others joined in and the impromptu quartette stood up with mock solemnity and chanted the song.

No one meant to give offense but everywhere that Bob Lamb appeared with Mary—at college dances, at concerts or football games or just strolling down some country lane—there was always someone by to warble or whistle the annoying tune.

So after the end of Mary's junior year and Bob Lamb's senior year they felt that they had seen a great deal of each other than they had hoped. Bob was going to New York to start in business with his uncle and Mary would have to stay at home—a thousand miles from New York. They decided that before that long and last separation they must spend a few weeks undisturbed in each other's company.

Bob heard of a college camp somewhere in the next state. There was a tent colony for the men and another for the girls—a study camp where serious-minded students went to study astronomy under the direction of a number of renowned astronomers. Neither Bob nor Mary had ever felt more than passing interest in the study of the heavens, but there would be opportunity to see each other at lectures and on the observation excursions. They could sit together in the evening on mountain tops gazing at the stars. True, there would be the other students and the learned professors, but there would be no one to tease them. They needn't let anyone know that they had ever met before. It was Mary's idea that their names must not go with them. Someone might think of the stupid song about Mary and her little lamb. It would be simple enough in Mary's case. She could easily use her middle name, Ella. It took some maneuvering on Bob's part. Finally he took a friend, Bill Ball, into his confidence and arranged to use his college certificate for enrollment.

For the first two weeks of the sessions at the summer camp everything went beautifully. Then it became apparent that Bob—now Bill Ball—and Mary—now Ella—contrived to sit next to each other on all occasions. One evening when the class of campers were starting off up the mountain-side someone in the party began to hum the tune of the nursery song that had become so odious to Mary. It seemed as if everyone took up the air-whistling or warbling as they went. Then someone began the words:

Ella had a little Lamb, his fleece was black as coal—

And everywhere that Ella went the Ball was sure to roll.

"Let's pretend we don't know they mean us," whispered Mary Ella.

"That won't work," said Bob Lamb—rather Bill Ball. "Let's pretend we like it."

So they stuck it out—wherever they were seen together someone was pretty sure to take up the notes of the old song. And at the end Bob got a letter from his uncle—offering him a little more than he had expected by way of a beginner's salary. On the strength of this Bob asked Mary to marry him as soon as they left summer camp. Mary said she was willing.

"Don't let's have a church wedding," she suggested. "The organist would be sure to play that hateful tune instead of the wedding march."

The Bolshevism of Brush Creek

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

"I WONDER why people love to say such horrid things," Marcia speculated.

"Natural cussedness—politely called original sin," Leesy said through the corner of her mouth.

"For instance, the Wests won't go anywhere," Marcia went on, "not even to church, since it got out that Jen's wedding clothes are still unpaid for—and that skintight Ives threatening suit. He knows they'll pay when they can, but keeps dunning them."

"Personal spite there—Jen could have had that goggle-eyed young Ives for just the taking," Leesy explained. "Goggle-eye propped himself on Jen's piazza three Sundays running, after scraping acquaintance with her Saturdays when she brought in their truck. Mose West invited him to stay away, ever so politely—told him Jen was his girl, and he didn't want a real dangerous rival. Goggle-eye proposed the very next day over the telephone—so next time Mose clean forgot to be polite—scared the Ives hope out of at least a year's growth."

"So that's the real low-down of it," Marcia laughed. "Something ought to be done about it. But how about a boycott?"

"With trimmings!" Leesy cried joyously. "Now that we all can vote, let's organize against the Oppression of the Unearned Increment in the shape of low credits to old Pat Logan. His megs are all set to run for circuit judge in September. The decent poor and the simply decent can't if they will, snow him under out of sight. Just get together, make-believe to turn Bolsheviki, I'll bet you we turn out angels of rescue to everybody in debt."

"Which means nearly everybody in the county."

"Say—do you know how long it takes to stop a mortgage sale?" Leesy asked abruptly.

"I can find out."

"I'm thinking of the Graysons," Leesy said. "They—they've had such dreadful luck—losing hogs with cholera, more than a hundred—worth enough to have left them free and clear; then lightning struck their stock barn—not insured through lack of money—which meant new teams on credit—at double price with interest."

Thus was hatched Brush Creek's outbreak of Bolsheviki enthusiasm that drew to that detestable region more than state-wide attention. Marcia and Leesy had laid all cards on the table before uncles, nephews, cousins, sweethearts present and prospective, also their grievances—which had enough of reality to make them tenable.

Their prize investigator was Joe Grayson, who looked so innocent and asked such simple questions nobody feared to tell him anything. That is to say, except Marcia Lytle—who let her eyes only tell him she loved him. Leesy knew without telling, being herself in much the same case regarding young Langley who had mortgaged his future for a loan from a speculative dealer in grain, in hope thus to make a quick fortune.

First storm clouds had risen in June to darken the political skies of sundry excellent gentlemen. Marcia and Leesy and their coadjutors for six weeks worked under cover. Suddenly burst the era of barbecues—plentiful roast meat to lure the sovereigns within earshot of orators who could charm birds from the trees, followed more barbecues—money began talking through them on the other side, then three days before election, every highway was placarded, "Citizens, vote to secure every man in what is justly his own—but not to let him take away through usury what belongs to his neighbor." Then letter boxes overran with printed transcripts of court proceedings where law had prevailed to the undoing of justice—like-wise statistics of what the county had lost potentially through the enforced emigration of so much of its best blood. More than one millionaire was in the roster, eke judges, railroad men, engineers, merchant-traders, what not—all under the heading: "They went away to find their chances—chances denied them at home."

No need to wait till votes were counted—admittedly the Bolsheviki had won, hands down. Sancy Leesy plucked an ear of the kidnaped Joe Grayson, saying softly: "I'm happy—happy enough to die. Don't grudge it—if you are a man. First chance I ever had to feel I'd really helped the right side. We'll do it again—me and Marcia—when it comes to voting for the new bridge at New Year. That means fat chances of hauling and so on for you and Billy Langley," flushing in spite of herself as she spoke the name; "and you go ask Marcia what she thinks of a nice double wedding at Christmas. She'd be awfully plagued if she had to ask you herself."

"Don't trifle! I've stood all I can today," Joe said huskily. "You don't—you can't think I've even half a chance?"

"A whole chance with bells and blue ribbon on it, also a wedding ring!" Leesy laughed—then as Joe grabbed her hand and all but crushed it: "Find Bill Langley and tell him about the plan—and if he threatens to run away, pounce him one in the eye."

Gopher Star Wins Two Captaincies

Two captaincies in major sports have been voted to Mally Nydahl, University of Minnesota athlete, in a single year. As a senior Nydahl will head the basketball and baseball teams of the Gopher school next year. He is counted upon also as a mainstay in the backfield of the football team.

Nydahl went in as a substitute halfback in the Minnesota-Wisconsin football game last autumn and ran back a punt 75 yards to give his team a last-minute victory. He matched the feat in the baseball season by delivering a home run with the bases full.

WOULDN'T PLAY BALL ON SUNDAY

Not a Fanatic on Subject, but Rickey Obeys Mother.

Seamed and wrinkled by his generation in the service of baseball, Joe Sugden, coach of the Phillies, recently unbosomed himself of a secret that has tortured the imagination of fan and player alike for years. Indeed, curiosity, on and off the diamond, has been harassed and excited by this revealed tale of the diamond—the reason why Branch Rickey never would play Sunday baseball.

Rickey was manager of the Browns after an inconspicuous role as player. He became vice president of the St. Louis Cardinals, present monarchs of bat and ball, a position in which he still sits in majesty and security. Rickey is a man of many ideas, many plans, many schemes, writes Gordon Mackay in the Indianapolis Star. To his diamond cronies he is a man to esteem, to admire and to hail as a pioneer in the sport which has become the great national delirium.

Therefore it was no surprise when Rickey developed a streak of stubbornness against playing on Sunday. It was just one of Rickey's queer whims, argued the fans or laughed the players. Yet none really knew the reason why the Browns' manager voluntarily exiled himself from the bench on the Sabbath.

No religious scruples dictated this course. It was filial obedience, a promise which he had made to his white-haired mother back in Lucasville, Ohio, when he first ventured into professional baseball. It was this same loyalty of son to parent that buttressed him in his stand, when jeered by fans, snubbed by players and scorned by the joyous souls who write the drama of baseball daily.

"Rickey told me why he wouldn't play baseball on Sunday," declared Sugden. When he told his mother he was going to join the Browns as a ball player, the sweet-faced old lady said to him:

"Branch, don't play on Sunday." Rickey said he wouldn't and he never did. But he wasn't any fanatic about the question. He wasn't against Sunday baseball, as a lot of chaps think. He was panned and roasted well, and a lot of baseball writers used to go over him in pretty raw style.

Cuyler Going Good

Hazen ("Kiki") Cuyler, star outfielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who was out of the game considerably earlier in the season on account of injuries, has fully recovered and is putting up his usual clever game in the field and is also hitting the ball hard.

Important That Hurlers

Have Well Trained Legs

Pitchers must have good legs. They need them as much, if not more, than infielders and outfielders. If the pitcher's legs are not properly trained he cannot pitch his best.

The fact that many pitchers weaken toward the close of a game can in most cases be traced to legs improperly trained or not trained at all. That is plausible. A man cannot pitch good ball when his underpinning is weary.

Pitchers do more work than the other players combined. The pitcher is the only man on the field who is continuously in action.

The pitcher, if he trained his legs properly and made it a point to develop speed, could win a few games himself by base running. A number of games are lost each year because the pitcher is helpless when on the bases.

Mary Had a Little Lamb

By JANE OSBORN

IT WAS the summer after Mary Lester's sophomore year in the state university that she met Bob Lamb at a country house-party. Bob Lamb had just finished his junior year at a smaller college. It was perfectly clear from the end of the first day at the hospitable old farmhouse that Mary liked Bob and that Bob was smitten with Mary. Bob did not hesitate to tell Mary of his feelings for her. For the time all he begged of her was that she would permit him to be somewhere near her. It was Mary's idea, then, that Bob should transfer himself from the smaller college and enter the senior class of the university that she attended.

So when Mary went back to college it was noised abroad that she had brought a "heavy suitor" with her. The girls in her fraternity house laughed at her and with her. Then one of them sitting at the piano began softly playing the strains of "Mary Had a Little Lamb."

The girls took up the words and Mary sat there blushing.

"But Bob Lamb's fleece isn't as white as snow," protested Mary weakly. "He has black hair."

"But he did follow you to school one day—you'll have to admit it," laughed one of the girls, and they went on singing the song.

Bob Lamb had been transferred from the fraternity in his own college to the chapter in the university where it was soon passed around that they had a girl to thank for the transfer.

"Nice girl—Mary Lester—a junior Gamma Sigma," informed one of the men. "Someone ought to drop a word of thanks to Mary—she did us a good turn."

One of the men who had listened to the remark began softly whistling the notes of "Mary Had a Little Lamb."

Someone with a bass voice began croaking the words. A tenor took it up. Two others joined in and the impromptu quartette stood up with mock solemnity and chanted the song.

No one meant to give offense but everywhere that Bob Lamb appeared with Mary—at college dances, at concerts or football games or just strolling down some country lane—there was always someone by to warble or whistle the annoying tune.

So after the end of Mary's junior year and Bob Lamb's senior year they felt that they had seen a great deal less of each other than they had hoped. Bob was going to New York to start in business with his uncle and Mary would have to stay at home—a thousand miles from New York. They decided that before that long and last separation they must spend a few weeks undisturbed in each other's company.

Bob heard of a college camp somewhere in the next state. There was a tent colony for the men and another for the girls—a study camp where serious-minded students went to study astronomy under the direction of a number of renowned astronomers. Neither Bob nor Mary had ever felt more than passing interest in the study of the heavens, but there would be opportunity to see each other at lectures and on the observation excursions. They could sit together in the evening on mountain tops gazing at the stars. True, there would be the other students and the learned professors, but there would be no one to tease them. They needn't let anyone know that they had ever met before. It was Mary's idea that their names must not go with them. Someone might think of the stupid song about Mary and her little lamb. It would be simple enough in Mary's case. She could easily use her middle name, Ella. It took some maneuvering on Bob's part. Finally he took a friend, Bill Ball, into his confidence and arranged to use his college certificate for enrollment.

For the first two weeks of the sessions at the summer camp everything went beautifully. Then it became apparent that Bob—now Bill Ball—and Mary—now Ella—contrived to sit next to each other on all occasions. One evening when the class of campers were starting off up the mountain-side someone in the party began to hum the tune of the nursery song that had become so odious to Mary. It seemed as if everyone took up the air-whistling or warbling as they went. Then someone began the words:

Ella had a little Ball, his fleece was black as coal— And everywhere that Ella went the Ball was sure to roll.

"Let's pretend we don't know they mean us," whispered Mary Ella. "That won't work," said Bob Lamb—rather Bill Ball. "Let's pretend we like it."

So they stuck it out—wherever they were seen together someone was pretty sure to take up the notes of the old song. And at the end Bob got a letter from his uncle—offering him a little more than he had expected by way of a beginner's salary. On the strength of this Bob asked Mary to marry him as soon as they left summer camp. Mary said she was willing.
